New Office Opened by Brink's Home Security in Atlanta

IRVING, Texas (May 24, 2005) – Another new office has opened for Brink's Home Security, in South Atlanta, GA. It is the second new branch office to open for the security alarm company in the past 8 months.

The new office gives Brink's Home Security three branch offices in the Atlanta metro area. One serves the northeastern portion of the metro area, one the northwest, and the new office will serve the southern part of the area.

"There has been consistent long-term growth in housing and our customer base in Atlanta and the surrounding communities, and this was a logical place for us to expand. Having this convenient location, allows us to serve our customers even better," said Rachel Luehrmann, Director of Brink's Home Security Mid-Atlantic Region.

The Atlanta Brink's Home Security market operates residential, commercial, and new construction lines of business. The South Atlanta branch will also house functions dealing with national accounts for commercial and national builder accounts. Bryant Waller will serve as General Manager, and Jared Pope will serve as Technical Manager of the new South Atlanta branch.
